

A LEGACY OF LOVE:

Honoring the Xaverian Brothers' Enduring Impact

Dear Friend of the Xaverian Brothers,

Imagine a world profoundly touched by selfless dedication. That is the world shaped by the Xaverian Brothers you remember—the men who dedicated their lives to nurturing faith, wisdom, and service in thousands of students across the globe. From the classrooms of the United States to the mission fields of Kenya, Congo and Haiti, their unwavering commitment has been a testament to God's enduring love, empowering generations of leaders and transforming communities. Their impact is a vibrant, living legacy that continues to bloom in countless lives, including your own.

Now, as these incredible men enter the next phase of their spiritual journey, we are presented with a sacred opportunity: to care for those who cared for us.

For a Xaverian Brother, retirement is not an ending but a continuation—a time of deepening prayer, quiet reflection, and sustaining community life, where they continue to hold friends and benefactors like you close in their hearts.

BY JOINING US IN THIS MISSION OF CARE, YOU ARE ENSURING THAT THE MEN WHOSE LIVES WERE DEVOTED TO SERVICE CAN LIVE THEIR RETIREMENT YEARS IN A SAFE, VIBRANT, AND LOVING HOME.

This spirit of ongoing dedication is perfectly captured by Brother Kenney Gorman, CFX, resident at Treyton Oak Towers in Louisville KY, who, when asked about his favorite part of his day as a “retired” Brother, replied: ‘A special boon has been being back in Louisville where I had taught at St. Xavier from 1968-1979 and served in parishes till 1986. It has been a blessing to be with many former students all now in their fifties, sixties and early seventies. Volunteering with others serving among the homeless, marginalized and sick.’

It is essential, as a family united in Christ, that we ensure our retired and aging Brothers receive the comfort, dignity, and specialized care they deserve. These 42 retired Brothers—residing in community homes, Xaverian House in Danvers, Treyton Oak Towers in Louisville, and other advanced care facilities—rely on our collective support. The mission of care is costly, with the needs at Xaverian House and Treyton Oak Towers alone is around $5,000 per month for each Brother.

Your generous gift today is more than a donation; it is a profound affirmation of gratitude for a lifetime of good works. It helps us provide not only essential daily support but also crucial enhancements to their homes.

By joining us in this mission of care, you are ensuring that the men whose lives were devoted to service can live their retirement years in a safe, vibrant, and loving home. Let us uplift these cherished members of our family. Your support honors their incredible legacy and allows their final chapter to be one of peace and well-being.

May God bless you for remembering the Brothers and for your continuing partnership in our enduring mission.

Yours in Christ,

Brother John D. Hamilton, CFX
